Subject: Trump to EPA 03/28/17 Demo Update

Law Enforcement Use Only *****

Good evening,

We are now tracking the below planned demonstrations by the group "Resist Trump at the EPA!" being planned by 350.org, Sierra Club, and People's Climate Movement groups. They have expressed plans to meet at 1200 Pennsylvania Avenue (initially gathering at 12th and Constitution) from 12:45pm-2:30pm. They have expressed interest in marching from the EPA to the White House and there is a high likelihood they could stop by Trump Hotel. So far numbers are 155 interested 27 going.

Call with questions,

Mr. Pruitt,

I am concerned about your claims regarding carbon's effect on the atmosphere, and would like to know more about the specific researchers, studies, or other sources that tell you that CO2 plays a minimal role. I want to know how you can justify saying that there is such a wide controversy among scientists regarding some of the central facts about climate change and the role that human activity has played. I have not seen this great controversy, but instead have seen time after time the measured and calculated evidence that points to trouble on the horizon.

Separate from the need to take carbon emissions seriously, we need clean air and industries that do not directly lead to worker death at such high rates. For one, if you look at OSHA reports, you'll see that many deaths happen from physical injuries and electrocution, but many also occur from inhaling toxic fumes, explosions in natural gas facilities, and other ways that oil and gas industries create harmful conditions for us all.

I want to know what the US Government is doing to take the lives of its citizens seriously. I want to know why we have to continually fight over whether X, Y, or Z are responsible for polluting, when we can hopefully all agree that we want to minimize pollution and maintain an environment that is livable. I hope that we can agree that we want to promote industries and practices that allow workers to go home at the end of the day, rather than burdening their families with funerals.

Thank you for your time,
Brian Garrison
